Three locations, one goal: to be good stewards of the earth by installing solar panels at three diverse camp and retreat ministry sites. And because we anticipate these sites may be able to produce as much as 90% of their own electricity through the new solar arrays, the money saved can be allocated to other needs across camping and retreat ministries.

Wallowa Lake (top) is already making progress toward completing the installation, possibly by the end of 2022. The Collins Retreat Center (bottom) started first but has run into challenges in working with the various partners and utilities. But they will persevere! And Magruder (middle) is scheduled to begin its work on the solar project in 2023.

As this Journal is published, there are still opportunities to participate in the project through donations or investment. Find more details at www.gocamping.org.
